53 Years of Dedication and Service

Many of us are familiar with the history of Fr. Mike's coming to the United States, settling in Louisiana, serving several parishes, and making countless connections and friends during his 53-year tenure as a priest. What some do not know is how and why this came to be.

Having parents that were strong mentors and influences in his life, he witnessed firsthand their constant works of mercy. He also worked for Patsy Doyle, an Irish native, who was an Assistant Superintendent in the construction field with a desire to help and serve others. Noting the extreme dedication these folks had to helping others, it is no wonder that the seed was planted for him to do the same. He began his training for the priesthood at age 21. Bishop Tracey, Bishop Border, Vocations Director, and then Fr. Stanley Ott had Irish connections, and upon visiting with Fr. Mike, they convinced him Louisiana was where he was needed to serve.

One thing that stands out in Fr. Mike's mind about his introduction to Louisiana was the hospitality given to him upon his arrival. He immediately knew he had landed amid a special community. He vowed to learn how to pronounce local family names and was determined to get to know his church family. In doing so, he became one of us! He enjoys the lifestyle that is similar to what he remembers from growing up in Ireland. The relaxed attitude of Louisiana life, story-telling, and the folklore of people sharing life events is unique.

The sentiment of being so "welcomed" into Louisiana has become something ingrained in Fr. Mike's everyday life. His mantra "All Are Welcome" is a direct result of how he felt when he came to St. Alphonsus. With open arms and hearts, he says he was wholeheartedly accepted and welcomed by all of us when he joined our parish 17 years ago.

When asked what his greatest rewards in serving parishioners were, he immediately knew it was being a part of their lives—being there for them in whatever capacity necessary. When presiding over funerals, though emotional and sad, he had the opportunity to offer solace, comfort, and support to those family members he had grown to know and love. Baptisms, weddings, and joyous celebrations were also the times that he fondly remembers.

To those young men who are now seminarians, Fr. Mike has these words of wisdom to offer: With the world ever changing, and changing so quickly, you should focus on the life of service ahead of you. Life changes daily. We all face challenging moments constantly. Be open to change and ready to adjust and adapt to each situation. Learn from the challenges. Be a good listener!

Always promoting vocations, Fr. Mike still has regular breakfast meetings with the youth in our middle school to encourage them to continue serving the Lord through vocations.

Like many of us who pray to the saints, Fr. Mike has two patron saints he has called upon to guide him throughout this journey, St. Patrick and St. Joseph. St. Patrick brought Christianity to the island of Ireland and used the shamrock to illustrate the Christian teaching of three persons in one God. St. Joseph is known as the patron saint of fathers, families, virgins, workers, especially carpenters, expectant mothers, and unborn children. Mimicking St. Joseph the worker, Fr. Mike was always eager to be part of the work efforts at our annual auction and festivals. (Continued inside bulletin on page 4)

Featured Saint of the Week

St. Anselm of Canterbury (1033–1109)

Feast Day: April 21

Little is known about Anselm's early years. He entered the monastery of Bec in Normandy at age 22, fulfilling his desire to become a monk. In three years he was elected prior; subsequently he was unanimously elected abbot.

During this time Anselm began publishing his theological works, which are said to be comparable to the works of St. Augustine.

Anselm was appointed archbishop of Canterbury, although King William Rufus did not want him appointed. The king and Anselm disagreed about the king's authority. The king felt he had more authority than the Pope and should be able to both appoint and assign bishops. Although Anselm eventually and reluctantly took the job, the gap between the two widened. Anselm voluntarily went into exile.

After King William Rufus died, Anselm returned to continue his work. The king, however, was succeeded by his brother, Henry I. Like his brother, Henry wanted control over the bishops, so, Anselm chose to go back into exile. During this time, he continued writing profound theology and defended the nature of the Trinity at a Church Council. He also served as counselor to the Pope.

As one of the leading philosophical and theological scholars of the Middle Ages, he was named a doctor of the Church. Anselm's philosophical premise was that God is "that which nothing greater can be conceived."

He was called the father of scholasticism for his attempts to analyze and shed light on the truths of faith with the aid of reason. One of his deepest convictions was that when faith in God comes first, understanding follows.

53 Years of Dedication and Service (continued from cover)

Young people have a special place in Fr. Mike's heart. He always viewed working with them a bright spot in his ministry, and he always looked for their potential and gifts. Stressing a positive self-image and insisting that they believe in themselves is his way of encouraging them to be successful.

Reconnecting with former parishioners who share the positive impact he had on their lives is another one of Fr. Mike's greatest joys. He finds it extremely rewarding to know he has had a hand in molding the future of others. The generosity of people willing to share their time and talents with their faith community is a great blessing he has received over the years. Because of the selflessness of folks willing to help, we all receive blessings through the service of others. He appreciates the gifts a church family shares to solidify the continued work of God.

Having served as a priest for the last 53 years, it is almost impossible to imagine the extent and scope of the responsibilities and tasks that Fr. Mike has done during his priesthood. To give you an idea of what his life has entailed, here are a few facts and figures that may interest you. Keep in mind, these are averages.

If Fr. Mike...

*only held one Mass per day, he would have said over 19,000 Masses.

* only baptized three persons per month, he would have baptized over 1,900 people.

*only heard six confessions per week, he would have heard over 16,000 confessions.

*only performed one wedding per month, he would have married 636 couples.

*only anointed one person per month, he would have anointed 636 people.

*presided over one funeral per month, he would have buried 636 people.

*attended two 3-day retreats per year, he would have gone to 106 conferences and spent 318 days, almost one full year in retreat.

*served on four committees/boards per year and met once a month for each one, he would have spent at least 2,544 hours in these meetings.

It might be hard to imagine one person doing all of these things, but when called to a life of priesthood and service, everything is "all in a day's work." Fr. Mike prides himself on doing what he was called to do.

Looking to the future, Fr. Mike is no different from those of us who have had the privilege of retiring. He is looking forward to setting his own time schedule for the things he plans to enjoy. His hobbies and interests include biking and racquetball. Kicking back to watch a football game with a nice glass of white wine is definitely in the near future. He is a fan of the New Orleans Saints, LSU sports, and the Notre Dame Fighting Irish.

Having been in Louisiana for as long as he has, Fr. Mike has become quite a fan of Cajun delicacies, enjoying catfish and placing crawfish at the top of this list. He recalls his first exposure to a crawfish boil—when the mudbugs were dumped on the table, he asked his hosts what he should do with them. In a display of true Southern hospitality, his new family demonstrated the proper way to peel them and did so for him!

One of Fr. Mike's favorite types of music is Irish ballads. His favorite movies are The Sting and Blazing Saddles. He is a fan of old TV shows such as Columbo, Sanford and Son, and Hawaii 50. He occasionally enjoys a slice of rum cake, and he fondly remembers enjoying a savory bowl of Irish Stew his mother used to prepare for him.

Uniquely himself, Fr. Mike is a dedicated shepherd looking after his flock, namely all of us and all others he has served. In 2013, Fr. Mike was honored to be named Pastor of the Year and recognized as such by the National Catholic Education Association. He is the only pastor from our Diocese to receive this award.

The thing Fr. Mike will miss most upon retirement is the kind, loving, welcoming parishioners he has had the privilege to serve over the last 53 years. We love you. We will miss you. We will remember you. We look forward to seeing you as a parishioner of St. Alphonsus. We wish you all the best!

Written by Vicki Whittington.

We Wish You Enough

We wish you enough sun to keep your attitude bright. We wish you enough rain to appreciate the sun more. We wish you enough happiness to keep your spirit alive. We wish you enough pain so that the smallest joys in life appear much bigger. We wish you enough gain to satisfy your wanting. We wish you enough loss to appreciate all that you possess. We wish you enough hellos to get you through the final goodbye!

Homebound? Need Holy Communion?

Do you know someone who is unable to attend Mass due to illness, frailty or other problems and wants to receive Holy Communion at home? St. Alphonsus has Eucharistic ministers who bring the comfort of Christ in the form of the Eucharist to those who cannot physically come to Mass. In this way, the sick and homebound are united to the Body of Christ present in our community. We continue the healing and compassionate ministry of Jesus, as members of His Body. It is always in Jesus' Name that we visit. Our call as Ministers to the Sick is to be present to those attempting to find God in their life situation by praying with and listening to them. Contact Donna Lambert at the Church Office at 225-261-4650 to arrange these visits.

Since Blaine Baker joined our staff as the Youth Minister a few months ago, he has worked diligently to bring back Youth Nights and improve the Lighthouse building for our youth. The game room has been repainted, and many of the games have been updated to reflect what the youth like today. A major part of youth group is enjoying each other's company. The kids love Youth Nights—the games, the food, and the ability to be part of the young faith community. The typical Youth Night on Sunday evenings includes prayer, catching up over a good meal, and a big group game.

One meeting room has been turned into what we call “the Union,” where the youth eat together and talk as a “youth group family.” The hallway now features a chalkboard wall where our youth can leave suggestions for youth activities for Blaine to take into account. The old kitchen has been transformed into a podcast room, where Blaine and Colby talk and connect their conversations to scripture. It's a great way for the youth to stay connected between Youth Nights. They are also working on converting the old nursery into a small chapel for the youth to enjoy.

When the Youth Minister position opened, it was a no brainer for Blaine. He said nothing can match the feeling he gets when he sees a young person open their heart, mind, and life to the Lord. "The youth ARE the Church; they always have been, and being able to work with them to take on their role of being a part of Christ's Church is guaranteeing that we are putting our faith in good hands," said Blaine. He added that he wishes more people could experience the faith through our young people belting out worship songs, laughing, and inviting others to be a part of different church ministries.

The kids are also enjoying Blaine's new mentor system where the middle and high schoolers work with college-aged young adults.

Over the summer, Blaine is continuing Youth Nights almost every Sunday evening. On July 12-13, they are planning to host a lock-in for the middle and high school youth. Registration for that will open soon.

In the fall, they will continue to have Youth Nights almost every week, in addition to some new opportunities to get involved. They hope to hold a few fundraisers this year so they can bring back youth summer fun trips, attend the March for Life, and attend Steubenville in the future. If you have any questions about Youth Night or upcoming activities, please email bbaker@alphonus.org.
